Oklahoma) Mundus Artium Press announces 2021 release the of Monarch Butterfly, selected poems by renowned Korean poet, critic and scholar Choi Dongho. In the new book, poet and scholar Kooseul Kim (Lost Alleys) and Korean cinema expert and subtitler Darcy Paquet (Parasite) combine their gifts to bring a decade-spanning selection of Choi Dongho's work to English-language readers.

Monarch Butterfly offers nuanced initiations into what critic Yoo Seongho's afterward describes as an "aesthetic model of Korean lyric poetry," focused on daily experience while articulating a transcendent vision.

Choi Dongho has used the term "extreme lyric poetry," geukseojeongsi in Korean, to charwork. His poems' succinct, evocative intensity stems from practiced spiritual concentration, which purposefully guides the reader along unconventional paths of perception.

South Korea's Daesan Foundation awarded a translation and publication grant for Monarch Butterfly as part of a program to promote Korean literature internationally.

Monarch Butterfly illustrates Choi Dongho's artistic development by drawing on his eight celebrated Korean-language volumes of verse. The writer's several books on poetry theory have further established him as a leading voice in Korean literature. His work has been translated into many languages.
